Insperity Extends Sponsorship with Champions Tour Agreement further solidifies Insperity's significant presence on Champions Tour

PONTE VEDRA BEACH, Fla. - The Champions Tour and Insperity today announced that Insperity has extended its title sponsorship of the Insperity Championship™ presented by UnitedHealthcare through 2016. The event is being contested this week at The Woodlands Country Club in The Woodlands, TX.

"We are pleased to extend our sponsorship of this prestigious Champions Tour event," said Paul J. Sarvadi, Insperity Chairman and Chief Executive Officer. "The Insperity Championship provides a great economic boost for local businesses, which reflects our corporate mission of helping businesses succeed so communities prosper. In addition, the tournament delivers an exciting, highly competitive event year after year, featuring a top-level Champions Tour field, and we look forward to continuing that tradition for the community through 2016."

"Insperity's business mission has had a direct impact on the Championship, helping it grow and prosper during their tenure," said Champions Tour President Mike Stevens. "Insperity's commitment through 2016 will allow the tournament to contribute significant proceeds to local charities and provide an economic impact in the area."

"I am very pleased and excited that Insperity has agreed to extend their sponsorship of the Insperity Championship through 2016," said Bryan Naugle, Executive Director of the Championship. "Insperity has been committed to the tradition of excellence the tournament created since its inception nine years ago and has created significant charitable contributions benefiting our local community."

Brad Faxon is the defending champion of the Insperity Championship. Faxon won in just his sixth start on the Champions Tour after turning 50 on August 1 last year. Faxon also joined Bernhard Langer, the 2007 champion, as the second player to make the Insperity Classic his first title on the Champions Tour.

The Woodlands will host the Insperity Championship for a fifth consecutive year this week. Past champions include World Golf Hall of Fame members Langer (2007, 2008) and Larry Nelson (2004). Fred Couples, a former University of Houston standout, won in 2010. John Cook (2009), Jay Haas (2006) and Mark McNulty (2005) are also former champions.

In each of the last five years, the Insperity Championship has contributed over $500,000 annually to local charitable organizations.

About the Champions Tour

Collectively, the Champions Tour has the most recognizable and accomplished players in the game with many of its 29 members of the World Golf Hall of Fame competing regularly in its events and numerous other major championship winners among its members. The Champions Tour is a membership organization of professional golfers age 50 and older. Conceived in 1980 as the Senior PGA Tour, it started with just four events and purses totaling $475,000. Points earned in official Charles Schwab Cup events in 2011 determined Tom Lehman as the Charles Schwab Cup champion, the season-long competition designed to recognize the Champions Tour's leading player. The Champions Tour's primary purpose is to provide financial opportunities for its players, entertain and inspire its fans, deliver substantial value to its partners, create outlets for volunteers to give back, protect the integrity of the game and generate significant charitable and economic impact in communities in which it plays. In 2011, tournaments on all three Tours (PGA TOUR, Champions Tour and Nationwide Tour) generated more than $118 million for local charitable organizations, bringing the TOUR's all-time total of charitable contributions to more than $1.7 billion. The Commissioner of the PGA TOUR is Tim Finchem. Mike Stevens is President of the Champions Tour. The PGA TOUR's website is www.pgatour.com, the No. 1 site in golf, and the organization is headquartered in Ponte Vedra Beach, FL.
